

Meet WB17's Kirk Clyatt

Meteorologist

Meteorologist Kirk Clyatt joined WB17 News at Ten when the newscast debuted its half-hour format in December 2003. He holds the seal of approval from both the American Meteorological Society (AMS) and the National Weather Association (NWA). Kirk most recently was seen on NBC10.

Kirk brings a breadth of experience to WB17 News at Ten. Prior to WB17, Kirk also served as Chief Meteorologist at WBRE-TV (NBC) in the Wilkes-Barre/Scranton market and WNUV-TV (WB) in Baltimore, Maryland where he was awarded two Emmys for "Outstanding Weathercast" in the National Capital Region. Kirk has worked in broadcasting in Florida, California, Indiana, Louisiana and Georgia where he was a weather anchor for CNN and CNN International. Kirk actually started his broadcasting career in radio. In addition to the USA, he worked in the United Kingdom and Australia. He can still be heard in Melbourne, Australia on 3AW Radio, where he is a U.S.A. reporter for their Breakfast Show.

Kirk was born in South Carolina, but was raised here in the Mid-Atlantic. "It's great to be back in a great city and a part of the country I know so well," says Kirk. He completed the Broadcast Meteorology Program at Mississippi State University, but gained much of his weather knowledge as an instrument rated aircraft pilot and a former aircraft owner.

Kirk has a very adventurous spirit that includes doing anything from scuba diving to running marathons. He is also the proud father of two children.
